GATLIN INTERNATIONAL AND UNESCO INSTITUTE FOR LIFELONG LEARNING ANNOUNCE ADULT LITERACY COURSE

PARIS - The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization's Institute for Lifelong Learning recently partnered with Gatlin International LLC to provide a new Adult Literacy online training course.

Accessible at <http://www.unesco.org/education/aladin/?menuitem=11&cat=7>, the non-credit course can help individuals with real-life dialogue, discussions, negotiations and conversations. It contains a full range of computer-based activities including listening tasks, text display options and interactive speaking exercises.

The Adult Literacy training programme is written and developed in conjunction with five U.K. educational institutions including Stratford on Avon College, Henley College and Warwickshire College. Upon successful completion of the course, students are awarded a certificate of completion.

"We are proud to be partnering with UNESCO's Institute for Lifelong Learning in offering our Adult Literacy training course," said Gillian Duncan, managing director of Gatlin International. "The course is an interactive, fun and cost-effective way to learn important conversation skills. Best of all it offers the convenience of working from your personal computer and at your own pace."

Institutions of higher learning or corporations interested in offering quality online career training programmes can contact Gatlin International at info@gatlininternational.com for more information.
